

Higher education is high priority at Buile Hill, we are raising our students' awareness of higher education, but also relating this to choices and pathway decisions. We are raising aspirations and encouraging our students to enter higher education. We are also enabling parents to support decision making. This work has been a key feature of the curriculum this year and has included:

- working in collaboration with GM higher
- working with other local and national universities
- student visits to universities across the north west
- guest speakers from universities
- apprentice talks
- routes into higher education
- Russell group talks including Oxford university
- visits to higher education fairs
- careers fairs in school where student ambassadors are available to help
- finance talks and benefit awareness

Staff also attend training days at universities as part of their awareness and this enables them to network with university key staff and develop new approaches to careers and higher education and keeps them informed about new initiatives.
